DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-9, 11-13, 19-23, 26-29, 34, 37-39 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Smith et al. (Smith), U.S. Patent 4,024,229.

Smith discloses the claimed method and system for generating polysulfide in pulping liquor comprising the sodium sulfide, providing the claimed oxidation promoter (see Abstract). The reference further discloses the claimed substrate and coating as claimed (see columns 9-10). The patent teaches the relative size of the promoter in the vessel (see claim 1). The patent further teaches the use of oxygen containing gas (see col. 17, lines 59-62).

Therefore, since the Smith patent discloses each and every limitation, the claims are anticipated.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 10, 14-18, 24 and 25 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith as applied to claims above.

The Smith patent fails to disclose some of the modifications to the shape of the reactor. The invention as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the disclosure of the Smith to change the shape of the reactor, because such modification to shape has been well settled to be within the purview of the ordinary artisan, unless the change produces an unexpected result.

Claims 30-33, 35-36, 40-56 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith as applied to claims above, and further in view of Dorris, U.S. Patent 5,082,526.

The Smith patent does not teach the use of the stirrer as claimed with other structural limitation. The Dorris patent teaches the use of such a reactor to form the polysulfide (see abstract and figures 2-3 and claims 1-13).

Consequently, the invention as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the disclosure of the Smith to change the shape of the reactor to use the reactor disclosed by Dorris, because the Dorris patent teaches the use of a stirred reactor as claimed to produce polysulfide.
